Royal visit unlikely to mend differences

U.S.-U.K. ties expected to continue fluctuating

Michael Collins, Kim Hjelmgard and Chris Kenning
USA TODAY

WASHINGTON — King Charles III jokingly apologized for the British burning the White House during the War of 1812 but slyly noted that, were it not for his countrymen, the Americans might be speaking French.

President Donald Trump marveled at the king's diplomatic skills at winning over Republicans and Democrats and paid him the ultimate Trumpian compliment: The king, the president said, is "a fantastic person."

But beneath the lighthearted banter, the personal flattery and the theatrical spectacle that surrounds a royal visit, signs remained of the deep divisions that have become the most serious test in decades of the long friendship between the United States and the United Kingdom.

"We have stood together through the best and worst of times," Charles, in white tie and tails, said during his toast at the White House state dinner in his honor in the East Room on April 28.

Political analysts praised the king's diplomatic overtures and the manner in which he deftly dealt with Trump, who is angry with British Prime Minister Keir Starmer and the British government over a multitude of issues, including their reluctance to get involved in the U.S.-Israeli war with Iran. But they questioned how far the king's four-day state visit would go toward patching up the discord.

"Clearly you saw graciousness on both sides and a real warmth," said Matthew Barzun, who served as U.S. ambassador to the United Kingdom from 2013 to 2017. "There is more trust, respect and understanding, I think, at the end of this week than there was before." Barzun compared the current "difficulties between the two countries to strained marriage." "When you come through it," he said, "you come through it stronger."

President Donald Trump and King Charles III showed graciousness and warmth during the king's visit to the United States, but it is unlikely to solve any real policy disagreements. CHRIS JACKSON/POOL VIA REUTERS

The royal visit is unlikely to mend differences on policy issues, said Garrett Martin, codirector of the Transatlantic Policy Center at American University.

"No matter how well-crafted the speech was, the differences in positions — over Iran, over Greenland, over trade — are pretty deep and pretty entrenched," Martin said. "So I think it's not really likely, just because of the goodwill of this week, to expect that President Trump is going to change his tune next week about how he views the U.K. position on the Iran conflict."

In Britain, Gwyneth Trowler, a senior official in the far-right Reform UK, a party headed by Trump ally Nigel Farage, praised the king's outreach to Americans, especially his remarks before a joint session of Congress, an honor rarely afforded to a foreign leader.

Charles managed to pull off "a sort of double hit" by pleasing many Democrats in Congress and at the same time winning the president, said Trowler. "The queen couldn't have done it better," she said, referring to Charles' late mother, Queen Elizabeth II, for whom Trump has expressed a particular fondness.

Towler conceded that Trump is a highly unpredictable and even fickle political operator, and said it's not clear how long the good feelings will last in terms of politics.

Even with the public bonhomie between the two men, there were reminders that all is not well.

The trip started with an awkward greeting when Trump, known for his aggressive handshake, grabbed Charles' hand and held onto it. Charles finally broke the clutch after about 10 seconds.

At the state dinner, Trump put the king on the spot by declaring "Charles agrees with me" that Iran should never have a nuclear weapon. Charles, who is the British head of state but not the head of government, typically avoids politics.

Even so, in his remarks to Congress, the king appeared to make pointed references to Trump without mentioning him by name.

He reminded Americans that the British and other NATO countries came to the defense of the United States after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

Trump has repeatedly questioned the value of the NATO alliance.

A noted environmentalist, he praised the "natural wonders" of the United States and spoke of "our shared responsibility" to protect them. Trump has called climate change "the greatest con job ever" and withdrew the United States from the Paris Accord, an international treaty to limit rise of the Earth's temperature.

In one of the speech's most memorable moments, Charles received raucous applause and a prolonged standing ovation — from Democrats and Republicans — when he stressed the need for checks and balances on executive power.

The king wasn't just addressing Trump and his administration, Martin said. He was also addressing the British public, many skeptical of the visit, who saw him affirm values such as international alliances, protecting the environment, democracy and the rule of law.

In one sign of how much the United Kingdom has worried over the relationship between the two countries, its ambassador to the United States told a group of students in February that the only country that has a "special relationship" with the United States at the minute is "probably Israel," the Financial Times reported.

Phillip Reeker, who served for nearly a year as the U.S. interim ambassador to the United Kingdom under President Joe Biden, said Charles' remarks — and his overall visit — served as a reminder that the bond between Washington and London is far more important than whatever the problems of the moment may be.

Trump has issues with Starmer now, but in fall 2025 he praised the prime minister as "tough" and "a great negotiator" after the two countries finalized a trade and technology agreement seen as mutually beneficial.

"I don't think we should get too worked up over what the perceived relationship is, what the narrative is in this reality show, at any particular moment," Reeker said. The British still hold affection for America and Americans, "even if they're frustrated with the statements of the president."

RE: Notice of Public Hearings for Comprehensive Plan Amendment (CPA) 25-03, P3 Public Facility with Clinic: An application initiated by the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) to amend the Future Land Use Map (FLUM) and the County Zoning Atlas on a ±2.66-acre property located north of SE Ruhnke Street and east of the corner of SE Willoughby Boulevard and SE Ruhnke Street in Stuart.

Dear Property Owner:

As the property owner within 1,000 feet of the identified site in the above description and shown on the enclosed map, please be advised that consideration of proposed amendments to (1) the Future Land Use Map and (2) the County Zoning Atlas will occur at two public hearings.

1. Legislative public hearing to change the Future Land Use Designation:

FROM: INSTITUTIONAL-GENERAL TO: COMMERCIAL OFFICE/RESIDENTIAL

2. Quasi-judicial public hearing to change the Zoning District Classification:

FROM: PS-2 (PUBLIC SERVICE) TO: CO (COMMERCIAL OFFICE)

Public hearings on each item listed above are scheduled before both the Local Planning Agency and the Board of County Commissioners. The date, time and place of the scheduled hearings are as follows:

Governing Body: LOCAL PLANNING AGENCY

7:00 P.M., or as soon after as the matter may be heard, on Thursday, May 21, 2026

Governing Body: BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

9:00 A.M., or as soon after as the matter may be heard, on Tuesday, June 9, 2026

Place: Martin County Administrative Center
2401 S.E. Monterey Road
Stuart, Florida 34996

Accessibility arrangements: Persons with disabilities who need an accommodation to participate in these proceedings are entitled, at no cost, to the provision of certain assistance. This does not include transportation to and from the meeting. Please contact the Office of the ADA Coordinator at (772) 320-3131, or the Office of the County Administrator at (772) 288-5400, or in writing to 2401 S.E. Monterey Road, Stuart, FL 34996, no later than three days before the date of the meeting. Persons using a TTY device, please call 711 Florida Relay Services.

Public Involvement opportunities: All interested persons are invited to attend any or all of the above-described hearings and will have an opportunity to speak during the public comment portion of the public hearing. All application files are available for public inspection during business hours at the address below. Written comments will be included as part of the public record of the application.

Record for appeals: If any person decides to appeal a decision made with respect to any matter considered at the meetings or hearings of a board, committee, agency, council, or advisory group, that person will need a record of the proceedings and, for such purpose, may need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made. This record should include the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be based.

Comprehensive Planning Facts: The Future Land Use Map is an exhibit of the Martin County Comprehensive Growth Management Plan which is one of the primary tools for managing land development. The Future Land Use designation of a parcel of land determines the general type of use allowed, as well as the maximum level of density or intensity allowed (such as the number of residential units per acre). The zoning regulations provide one or more zoning districts for implementing each Future Land Use designation. The zoning designation determines, in more detail than the Future Land Use designation, what type and level of development may occur. A small-scale change to the Future Land Use Map requires the following legislative public hearings:

1. Local Planning Agency (which makes a recommendation to the Board of County Commissioners).
2. Board of County Commissioners (to determine whether the proposed amendment should be adopted).

Ability to intervene in the quasi-judicial public hearing to change the zoning district classification: A person may participate as an Intervenor in the quasi-judicial hearing on the rezoning. An Intervenor can ask questions of the staff and applicant and can provide testimony. To be an Intervenor, a person must qualify to receive mailed notice of the application in accordance with Article 10, Section 10.6.E, Land Development Regulations, Martin County Code.

In addition, an Intervenor must file a form of intent with the County Administrator at least seven (7) business days prior to the Local Planning Agency (LPA) or Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) meeting. No fee will be assessed. If the Intervenor is representing a group/association, he/she must file a letter on official letterhead, signed by an authorized representative of the group/association, stating that he/she is authorized to speak for the group. Forms are available on the Martin County website www.martin.fl.us. Any documentation, including any digital media, intended to be proffered as evidence must be submitted to the Growth Management Department at least seven (7) business days prior to the LPA or BOCC meetings.
