

The ability of grasses to function as vegetative filter strips that greatly reduce the quantity of sediment transported into surface streams and rivers is well documented.

