Both the Jensen Beach and Stuart Causeways sustained damages from Hurricane Irma. Erosion of the shorelines was severe and needs to be repaired to ensure the safety of the citizens who utilize the recreational amenities and to keep from losing more ground and eventually infrastructure. The current tasks identified for this project include, consulting, engineering, design fees, permitting, infrastructure repairs, shoreline stabilization repairs and materials, and the work needed to add materials to mitigate erosion issues in the future.

BACKGROUND

Both Causeways are on the water and are considered "active acreage". They are valuable assets to the community and provide water access, boat ramps, fishing, a playground, picnic pavilions, restrooms, parking and great views. Both are heavily used by the community.
