

appropriation bill that included the full $200 million and the Senate approved it in the Energy and Water Development Sub-committee but failed to bring it to a full vote of the Senate prior to the beginning of the new fiscal year. In order for the projects that are critical to reducing harmful Lake Okeechobee discharges and restoring water quality in the St. Lucie River and Estuary to be completed, it is of utmost importance that CERP receive federal funding at the $200 million level. This resolution urges the Senate to approve an appropriation bill that fully funds CERP.
